Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Wednesday 12 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rather cloudy. Scattered showers.

Today:
Rather cloudy with showery rain becoming confined to the north this morning. Southern Scotland and western areas up to Skye will become brighter and warmer this afternoon with scattered showers, some heavy. Staying drier over the Northern Isles.

Tonight:
Eastern Scotland will be mostly cloudy with some mist and low cloud and a little drizzle. A mainly dry night across western Scotland with clear periods.

Thursday:
Bright or sunny spells developing although staying rather cloudy in the Northeast. There will be some showers but fewer and lighter than Wednesday. Light northeasterly winds.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Staying rather cloudy and cool over northern Scotland with a little rain at times. Drier, brighter weather for central and southern Scotland but some afternoon showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.